MRS. EMMA BRITTON

Great Sensation on Staten Island.

First Petled and Then Embracea. New York World: The report that Mrs. Emma Britton, the wealthy widow of the late Abram Britton, a daughter of the aristocratic Vredenburgh family, and a relative by marriage of the Vanderbilts had been married to Thomas McLaughlin her twenty-one-year-old coachman, has created a sensation in Staten Island. The Vredenburgh homestead is at Castleton, near the farm the late Commodore Vanderbilt bought when he ran a line of sloops to New Brunswick. The two old Knick-erbocker families, resident on the island since the colonial days, became closely connected by intermarrisge. About twenty years ago Miss Emma Vredenburgh, young, stylish and haudsom, became the wife of Abram Britton. The husband head and front of a numerous and well organized band of expert makers and shovers of the "queer." His skill in evading arrest is said to have been something marvelous, and so ingenious as to command the admiration of the officers.
